THE CENSUS FIGURES.

SMALL INCREASE IN THE POPULATION.

An Addition of Less than Half-a-Million in the Last Ten Years—The Population and Increase of the Different Provinces Given, Etc., Etc.

OTTAWA, Aug. 27.—Following is a summary of the census figures, as given to Parliament last night:—

	1881.	1891.	Per Ct. of Inc.
Eastern.
Nova Scotia	440,572	450,523	2.25
New Brunswick	321,233	321,274	0.00
Prince Edward Island	108,891	109,078	0.18
Totals	870,696	880,905	1.17
St. Laurence.
Quebec	1,359,027	1,488,586	9.53
Ontario	1,920,921	1,112,989	9.65
Totals	3,285,949	3,601,575	8.40
Western.
Manitoba	62,260	154,442	148.06
Assiniboia, Saskatchewan and Alberta	25,515	61,487	140.98
British Columbia	49,459	92,767	87.56
Unorganized	30,901	32,169	4.00
Total	168,135	340,864	102.69
Total population	4,324,810	4,822,344	11.52

The percentage of increase in the population of Canada from '71 to '81 was 17.81; from '81 to '61 the percentage increase was 11,52. The Maritime provinces have remained nearly stationery in population. The ratio of increase in the provinces of Quebec and Ontario has been nearly the same. In the Western provinces the percentages of increase have been very large, but have not equalled the estimates.

The population of the cities of British Columbia is given as follows:—

Victoria	16,849
Vancouver	13,685
New Westminster	6,641
Nanaimo	4,500

The populations of the five British Columbia electoral districts are as follows:

Westminster	24,000
Victoria	18,338
Vancouver	18,229
Yale	12,000
Carboo	10,000

Owing to all the returns not being in, the two latter are approximate.

According to the readjustment clauses of the B.N.A. Act, Manitoba alone is entitled to increased representation. She will secure two more members. If Ontario had six thousand more population she would secure one more representative.

The total population of Canada is very much smaller than might have been expected, and makes a poor showing for ten years of Conservative rule. The Tories are very much chagrined over the result.

NEW WESTMINSTER.

There Will be no Horse Racing at the Exhibition—Australian Scullers.

NEW WESTMINSTER, Aug. 27.—The chairman of the aquatic committee of the celebration received the following telegram this morning from W. Naughton, sporting editor of the San Francisco Examiner:

"Muirhead informs me that Peterson cannot come. Will you allow the Australians (Dutch and Stevenson) $75 expenses between them?" Naughton was wired to day that expenses will be allowed and to start the Australians this way.

At a meeting of the celebration committee last night, a petition from the horse racers was presented. They got the worst roasting in their lives from the other members of the committee. The petition was ignored as an absurd and ill-timed act. There will be no horse racing this year.

The American bark Newsboy arrived last night to load lumber at the McLaren lumber mills for southern ports.

The Scotch ship Morayshire arrived to-day at 1 o'clock from Vancouver with a lot of water works material.

The Caledonian gathering here to-morrow promises to be a large meeting. A number of provincial athletes arrived to-day to take part.

THE MANITOBA HARVEST.

Light Frost All Over the Province Last Night—To-day Clear and Warm.

WINNIPEG, Aug. 26.—There was a light frost all over the Province last night. To-day is clear and warm, and harvesting is progressing rapidly.

WASHINGTON CITY, Aug. 26.—The temperature is below freezing in Manitoba, and if clear, the frosts are likely to reach south from upper Wisconsin to northern Iowa to-night, and recur on Thursday.

NANAIMO NEWS.

Miners Who Object to Assessments Hold a Meeting—Proposed Poultry Show.

NANAIMO, Aug. 27.—A meeting of about 130 miners employed by the New V.C. Co., was held yesterday. Mr. H. Pyper stepped forward and asked those present to select a chairman, which proved a difficult matter, none caring to take the responsibility. Mr. G. Burt was eventually elected to the position of chairman. In taking the chair he explained that the meeting was called for all those who were opposed to paying the assessment. He said he had been termed the "boss kicker," and he supposed the name was well applied. There were some who had paid these assessments for the past fifteen months, but he was compelled to say he had not been able to afford to do so. In dealing with the mass meeting recently held he claimed a lot of the Wellington strikers had been run in to make up a majority. He claimed the strike had long since prove ineffectual, and should have been terminated long ago. Now the strikers of Wellington were attempting to tyranically force others to pay them to do nothing; they were worse than the Dunsmuirs, who they claimed were tyrants of the worst type. These men would tell some pathetic story about the children of the strikers going hungry for the want of bread, but they didn't care how your children get on (cheers). The men on strike at Wellington were getting better pay now than when they were working. He asked the meeting to discuss the matter in a quiet spirit, and do nothing rash that could be cast in reflection upon them by those who were anxious to find some fault with their actions.

J. Humphrey—I have quit paying the assessment, and I will pay no more. I consider it unjust, and therefore refuse to uphold it.

D. McKinnell—We took round a petition this morning, and Mr. McGregor, the manager, had refused to allow us to go round, although he expressed his opinion that we were misrepresented.

R. Carr—We took round a petition this morning, and as far as we went we obtained a majority. Some refused to sign until they saw what others would do, but they were all against paying the assessment. I think we have paid it long enough, and it is quite time it was put a stop to. There were 152 men down the Southfield mine this morning, and 87 were against paying.

J. Gould—I got all the names of the men on the petition at No. 3, with the exception of seven. The chairman suggested that a full meeting be called on Sunday afternoon next, so that all who are working could attend.

T. Wakeman—I am one of the victims, but I considered I was no member of the union when I refused to pay my levy. I saw a notice on the pithead on Monday stating that I was discharged because I did not belong to the union. I will not pay a cent more to it. I was tired of it from the first. An Italian miner claimed that the men of Nanaimo were too soft. If the money that was given to the strike had been paid to the company it would have done to have paid my lot off. If anyone will support me I will go out on strike myself. It is a shame to carry on this scheming business any further.

The chairman drew attention to the ruin that had attended many cities through the unjust strikes of the miners, and he predicted the same for Nanaimo unless they guarded themselves in time. The best thing they could do now was to watch what they were doing very carefully.

J. Gamble—I move that a meeting be called on the "Green" on Saturday night at 8.30 p.m. The motion was seconded.

D. McDonald suggested that the petition be gone on with.

J. Hadley—There are men here now who swore they would not pay the assessment, but at the recent mass meeting they brazenly went with the majority.

The motion carried.

A committee of four was selected to wait on Mr. Robins and explain the matter to him.

R. Pyper said—I think Mr. Robins has been misinformed about this matter, and I think if he is properly informed about the present action of the men he will remove the names placed at the pit head.

J. Humphrey—I don't pay my levy and I will not. I don't want any man to get into trouble for me. I will leave the diggings first.

J. Gamble looked upon the enforcement of the levy as a disgraceful action of the leaders of the union.

Mr. Pyper—Mr. Boyce informed me that there would be a lot more men discharged after they had got rid of the few who had already been notified.

The meeting was brought to a close by a vote of thanks to the chairman.

POULTRY AND DOG SHOW.

An association is to be formed to-morrow evening for the purpose of making some arrangements to hold a dog, poultry and fancy pigeon show in the fall. The prizes will be put at a figure that will induce all the people in the province to take part in it. Dr. Walkem is the owner of several of the best bred fowls that can be found in British Columbia, but there are plenty of other birds here.

LEWISHAM ELECTION.

CONSERVATIVES PLEASED WITH THE RESULT.

Russia Obtaining a Foothold in Corea—Magyars Unsuccessful in their Know-Nothing Movement—Germans Tired of Their Damaraland Venture.

LONDON, Aug. 27.—The Conservatives claim that they have reason to congratulate themselves on the result of the Lewisham election. While it is true that Viscount Lewisham carried the borough by good majorities in 1885 and 1886, yet Lewisham has for many years been closely attached to the Dartmouth family, so that no real test of strength could be had with a member of that family as a candidate. Therefore Wednesday's election was the first real trial of strength between the parties on existing issues. Mr. Gladstone's earnest advocacy of the Liberal candidate, Mr. Warmington, also put both parties on their mettle. The Liberals put forward prominently the issue of home rule for Ireland. Penn, the Conservative candidate, declared himself in favor of the Government's policy in Ireland, and advocated the checking of the immigration of foreign paupers. On these and other issues the contest was fought. The vote showed a considerable increase, both of Conservatives and Liberals. Mr. Penn got 4585 votes and Mr. Warmington had 3889 votes. In 1886 Viscount Lewisham had 3829 votes, and Offer, the Liberal candidate, 1088.

KNOW-NOTHINGISM IN HUNGARY.

A Vienna despatch tells some funny incidents connected with the new Magyar national society, recently founded at Budapesth. The society is purely Hungarian, and its rules provided that its members shall buy no German newspapers published in Hungary, patronize no German shops and frequent no hotels, restaurants or cafes where there are German waiters, or where the bills of fare and notices to the public are in any but the Magyar language. The fact is the Germans control the best hotels and restaurants in Budapesth, and they in turn are boycotting the members of the society, when, driven by hunger for a good dinner, they forget the rules and seek a German restaurant. Several of the Magyars have been going with their faces unshaved for days because the leading barber shops refuse to discharge their German employees, and a good shave can be got nowhere else. The society seems likely to fall to pieces because its principles are too difficult to practice.

RUSSIA AND COREA.

A letter from Shanghai says that the Chinese Government is very much excited over the report that Corea has agreed to a Russian protectorate. Corea has always been claimed by China as a dependency and tribute is required and more or less regularly paid. The Coreans, however, dislike the Chinese yoke and have always been restive under it. Surprise is expressed among the foreign residents at Shanghai that Russia should take a step, if it has been taken, so likely to provoke a conflict with China. This Russia has endeavored heretofore to avoid, and has surrendered considerable territory in order to keep at peace with her Asiatic neighbor. It is said that Russia wants Corea as a depot for naval operations better situated than the barren northeastern shores of Russia in Asia.

DAMAGES AT PISAGUA.

The British merchant ships which were put to inconvenience and somewhat damaged during the fighting in Pisagua, Chili, have prepared their claims for damages for presentation to the Chilian government. The vessels claim to have made depots of refuge for thousands of non-combatants during a period in some instances of six weeks. One vessel, the Stretheara, had pigs, goats, fowls and household furniture on board, as well as human beings.

THE GERMANS IN DAMARALAND.

A letter from Capetown says the Germans in Damaraland are thoroughly sick of their attempt to settle that part of Africa, and that King Kamaharera says they must go home. The king has just been awakened to the idea that the Germans got the best of the treaty, which he signed when he was drunk, giving them his country for a few trinkets. The Capetown government has invited King Kamaharera to visit Capetown.

BISMARCK'S HEALTH.

A Munich dispatch emphatically denies that Prince Bismarck shows any sighs of bad health. It is said that he was never more vigorous.

Prince of Wales at Homburg.

NEW YORK, Aug. 25.—A special cablegram to the Tribune from London says: The Prince of Wales arrived at Homburg on Monday evening and took up his quarters, not, as has been supposed, at one of the villas attached to the Victorian Hotel, but at the Villa Imperial, in Kaiser Frederick's promenade, where he resided last year. The Prince, who, during the twelve months past has certainly not decreased in bulk, is looking somewhat worn, and has fallen into the regular Homburg routine. Before 8 o'clock he mingles with the visitors at Elizabeth spring, takes the prescribed number of glasses of water and promenades with friends, among whom are to be found Lord Hartington and the Duke of Abercorn. At 1 o'clock in the afternoon he breakfasts in the verandah of Park Hotel, and about 7 o'clock in the evening he dines at the restaurant attached to the Kurhaus, in both cases surrounded by a large and jovial party, among whom his voice and laugh are tolerably prominent.

Protest Against the Spanish Treaty.

MADRID, Aug. 26.—The Barcelona chamber of commerce is reported to have sent a formal protest to the government and cortes against the new treaty with the United States on the ground that the treaty will inflict a grave injury on the trade of Spain with the Spanish West Indies. The protest presents mainly the grievances of the Catalonian monopolists. &c.

Sailors Rescued in Behring Sea.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 25.—The steamer Faralone arrived to-day from the Pribilof islands with a cargo of sealskins to the North American Commercial Company. The vessel also brought down the crew of five men who were lost from the whaler E. N. Herriman during a fog. After some hardships they succeeded in making St. Paul island. When the Herriman was last sighted she was short handed, and it was reported some of the crew had mutinied and that two men were in irons.

A Young Indian Hero.

SEATTLE, Aug. 25.—A young Indian buck was drowned in the Duwamish river this afternoon at 3 o'clock while trying to save a little Indian girl who had fallen in. He was with a party of Indian hop pickers who had camped on this river just at the south end of the city limits. When the young buck saw the little one in the water he plunged in and was carried down by the swift current. The girl was rescued from a canoe. The boy's body has not been found. The drowning greatly excited the Indians.

Opposed to the Farmers.

OMAHA, Neb., Aug. 26.—At a meeting last night, the Omaha railway employes formed a branch association of employes, which is being formed all over the Western country. Its objects are stated to secure, by casting votes, federal officials who will favor laws opposed to capital oppression. A meeting of delegates will shortly be held to elect officers. It is said there are about 20,000 railroad men in this state, and that a thorough organization of these means 40,000 votes.

Wine Product in California.

FRESNO, Cal., Aug. 26.—The wine season has opened in this country. Thousands of men have started work in the vineyards, and the wineries have also begun operations. The yield of wine grapes is enormous, and the sweet wine product will be the greatest in the history of the country. Wine men will this year make wine vinegar, heretofore imported almost wholly from Germany.

BALMACEDA WINS.

Decisive Defeat of the Insurgents Before Valparaiso.

WASHINGTON, Aug. 27.—The following cablegram, dated Valparaiso, Chili, Aug. 26, was received by Senor Pazano, the Chilian minister at Washington, this morning: "On the 25th the insurgent army was completely defeated in Vina del Mar. A division of the Chilian government army cut off their return to their ships, and obliged them to unconditionally surrender. All the country applaud the valor and skill of the government army. (Signed). M. A. Alduinato, Minister of Foreign Affairs, Chili."

"The war is over," said Senor Pazano, the Chilian Minister of Foreign Affairs. Senor Pazano wore a contented expression upon his determined face, while his handsome wife, who acts as his interpreter, beamed with enthusiasm, joy and happiness. "The war began six months ago," Senor Pazano exclaimed," and the insurgents were led by Col. Canto, who had been dismissed from the Chilian army. He succeeded in securing the Chilian navy, and on this account has been enabled until now to maintain his army. The Chilian Government had no navy, and because of this disadvantage has been unable to hem in the insurgents. Had we had ships," said the Senor, tracing the position of the government's and the insurgents' forces on a rough map he had drawn, so as to explain himself, "we would have succeeded long ago."

MR. COCHRANE IMPEACHED.

The Charges Preferred Against Him by Mr. M. C. Cameron.

Following are the charges preferred by Mr. M. C. Cameron, M.P. for West Huron, against Mr. Edward Cochrane, M.P. for East Northumberland, which a special committee is to investigate:

1. That in the year, A.D. 1888, there was a vacancy in the position of Government lighthouse keeper in the Government lighthouse on Presque Isle Point, county of Northumberland.

2. That one Hedley H. Simpson was an applicant for said office.

3. That Edward Cochrane then was and now is the member for the House of Commons for the electoral district of the east riding of the said county of Northumberland and a supporter of the Government.

4. That in the year 1888 it was corruptly agreed to by and between the said Edward Cochrane and the said Hedley H. Simpson, that if the said Hedley H. Simpson would make and deliver to one James Stanley two promissory notes for $100 each, endorsed by some responsible persons, he, the said Edward Cochrane would procure the appointment of the said Hedley H. Simpson to the said office of lighthouse keeper for the Government lighthouse on Presque Isle Point

5. That the said Hedley H. Simpson, in pursuance of said corrupt bargain, did make the said two promissory notes for $100 each, procured their endorsement, or as nearly possible, duly handed them to the said James Stanley, who received the same and placed them in a bank for the use of the said Edward Cochrane personally or for political purposes.

6. That the said Hedley H. Simpson subsequently paid the same notes.

7. That the said Hedley H. Simpson, in pursuance of said corrupt bargain, received the said appointment.

1. That in the summer of 1889 Obadiah Simpson was promised by the said Edward F. Cochrane the Government office of keeper or attendant of one of the swing bridges over the Murray Canal.

2. That in the summer of 1889 the said James Stanley, who is a confidential friend and warm political supporter of the said Edward Cochrane, sent for one Arundel R. Simpson to call and see him. He did, when the said James Stanley proposed to the said Arundel R. Simpson, with the knowledge and consent of the said Edward Cochrane, that if the said Arundel R. Simpson would pay $150 and give to his father, the said Obadiah H. Simpson, the life lease of his farm as compensation for his not being appointed such bridgekeeper, he had been promised and had not received the said office, he, the said Arundel R. Simpson, would be appointed such bridgekeeper.

3. That shortly afterward the said Arundel R. Simpson had an interview with the the said Edward Cochrane on the same subject. Then the said Edward Cochrane said to him that they could not take the $150 for said office; that Stanley should not have made that offer; that other arrangements should be made with one Wesley Goodrich, who agreed to pay $200 and give life lease for said appointment.

4. That the said Edward Cochrane then and there corruptly proposed to the said Arundel R. Simpson that if he would pay said Edward Cochrane $200 and give said life lease he would be appointed. This he refused to do.

5. That subsequently it was corruptly agreed to by and between the said Wesley Goodrich and the said Edward Cochrane that if the said Edward Cochrane would procure the appointment of the said Wesley Goodrich to the said Government office of keeper of said bridge he, the said Wesley Goodrich, would pay the sum of $200 and execute to the said Obadiah Simpson, father of the said Arundel R. Simpson, a life lease on his farm, with a condition in said lease that if said Wesley Goodrich lost said appointment said lease would be cancelled.

6. That in pursuance to the said corrupt bargain the said Wesley Goodrich paid said money and executed said lease and caused his wife to execute the same to the said Obadiah Simpson on part of lot No. 18, in the second concession of the township of Cramahe, in the said county, for the rent of one peppercorn a year, and on the condition that if the said Goodrich should be released by the Government from attendance on said bridge, said lease would come to an end and be void; but, said condition was not to apply in case said Goodrich should be discharged on account of any act of his own.

7. That the said Edward Cochrane, while he was such member of Parliament and had the patronage of the Government in and for said county, corruptly entered into other corrupt contracts with other person or persons in the years 1888, 1889 and 1890, that if such person or persons would pay a certain sum or sums of money such persons or person would receive from the Government the position of keeper or keepers or attendants of other bridges on said canal and that, in pursuance of such corrupt bargain and bargains, such payments were made and such appointments were received.

2. That said Edward Cochrane during the periods aforesaid made such corrupt offers to other persons, which offers were not finally carried out.

Row at Gilman Mines.

GILMAN, Aug. 25.—Sheriff Woolery came to Gilman to-day. It is supposed that the object of his visit is to inquire into the trouble between the non-union miners and his deputies on last Sunday. Quite a number of the non-union men took a jaunt up to the falls, filled themselves up with forty-rod whisky, and when they came back and while passing through Gilman, they concluded to clean out the town, and drawing their pistols, made threats of what they would do. Deputies McDonald and Philbrick were compelled to use a little force in disarming them. There is no foundation for the rumor that after the non-union men receive their pay they will proceed to wipe out the town of Gilman, though the deputies claim that certain parties are using their best endeavors to get up a movement of that kind. We hope and trust that nothing of this kind will take place. A good many of the striking miners will find temporary employment in the hop-fields. One hundred and sixty-eight of the miners who came out on the strike six months ago, are still here, as only three of the old miners have sought work with the coal company. The balance have gone back to the States or over to British Columbia.

An Ontario Man Missing.

SEATTLE, Aug. 27.—Postmaster Davies has received a letter from Miss Emma Root of Stromness, Ont., inquiring as to the whereabouts of her brother, Lewis W. Root, who was until last January an employee of the Diller hotel. Miss Root says that he is 18 years of age, sober, honest and industrious, and that in January he had acknowledged the receipt of $100 which she sent him in December. Since that time she has heard nothing of him, and fears that he has got into trouble on account of having his savings and the $100 she sent in his possession. It was learned at the Diller to-day that Lewis left the hotel during the middle of last January and told his employers that he was going to San Francisco. He went to a down town hotel to stay a couple of days before leaving, and since then nothing has been heard of him. He left his trunk at the Diller hotel, and it still remains there. Although nothing has been heard from him, Mr. Diller is of the opinion that he reached San Francisco in safety.

Sugar Prices Down.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—The price of refined sugar was reduced ⅛c. a pound yesterday, by the voluntary action of the sugar trust. A report was current that Spreckels was in New York, in connection with the recent negotiations which the Spreckels company was reported to have made with the trust, whereby this company was to join hands with the sugar pool. Mr. Spreckels was not visible, and the conflicting reports that the Spreckels company was joining forces with the trust were again heard. A member of the firm of Willet & Gray, sugar brokers, said yesterday that the Spreckels company had issued bonds to the extent of $2,500,000 recently, and that a considerable proportion of those have been taken by the Havemeyer company. As a part of this transaction, a working arrangement had been made between the two concerns, so that while there was no actual consolidation of interests, they would no longer be considered rivals in business. Other sugar dealers believed that an arrangement had been made which would have about the same effect.

Salmon in the Sound.

SEATTLE, Aug. 26.—Mr. George Myers, of the Myers' cannery, is well posted on the habits of the salmon, having had experience in observing them for years. "The run of salmon this year," said Mr. Myers, "has been phenomenal, especially on account of the great length of time of their run. They have been also extraordinarily plentiful in the Sound. The prices range from 25 cents to $1 per hundred. The latter price I pay my own fishermen. The fish are caught in great quantities near the Skagit head of this bay. The Haddos that go up the Snohomish river seem to be a superior fish to those found in other rivers of the Sound. The silver salmon are also larger and better fish. Unfortunately there is no market for canned fish, and prices are dormant. The report that the Columbia river catch was short is untrue. They packed quite as much, if not more, than last year. I fully believe that the total salmon pack of 1891 will exceed that of any previous year."

Why It is Popular.

Because it has proven its absolute merit over and over again, because it has an unequalled record of cures, because its business is conducted in a thoroughly honest manner, and because it combines economy and strength, being the only medicine of which "100 Doses One Dollar" is true—these strong points have made Hood's Sarsaparilla the most successful medicine of the day.

PRISONERS ESCAPE.

Five Desperate Criminals Break Gaol at New Whatcom.

SEATTLE, Aug. 26.—Chief of Police Rogers was to-day informed of a wholesale escape of prisoners at Whatcom last night. Five desperate prisoners, the despatch stated, broke jail at New Whatcom last night, and to-day, the sheriff and a posse are scouring the country in pursuit of them. The prisoners were all charged with serious offenses. They were confined in three cells, all adjoining each other, and when the jailer let them out in the corridor to take their usual exercise this morning, they rushed at him and overpowered him, securing the keys. They stopped long enough to bind and gag him. One hundred dollars is offered for the capture of any one of the men or $500 for the capture of all of them. Below are the names and a brief description of them, telegraphed to the police to-day:

Cone—Height 5 feet 8 inches, light complexion, sandy mustache, weight 150, eyes blue, age 30.

White—Height 6 feet, dark complexion, eyes black, heavy black whiskers, hair slightly gray, age 40; wears dark gray suit.

Mann—Height 5 feet 11 inches, dark complexion, black moustache, weight 180, age 35, German descent.

West—Height 5 feet 8 inches, eyes blue, long thin nose, age 28 to 30, heavy set, light brown moustache, English descent, gray clothes.

Minor—30 years old, right arm off just above wrist, smooth face, dark complexion.

After leaving New Whatcom they separated, White and two others making up one party, and the other two men another. White's party went to a rancher's house, near Whatcom, and demanded to be given firearms. There was no one at home but the housewife, who quickly surrendered a shotgun and revolver to them.

THE CHILIAN WAR.

Balmaceda Preparing to Attack the Insurgents in Force.

NEW YORK, Aug. 27.—A special to the Herald from Valparaiso, Chili, (via Galveston), says: In all probability President Balmaceda will attack the insurgent forces now threatening this city to-morrow, and government officials and sympathizers are confident that he will crush them out of existence. It is impossible to learn the strength of the insurgent army, though naturally there are many rumors afloat in connection with it. There was to-day a report to the effect that they had made a demonstration against Santiago, and that the capital had fallen into their hands. This is not true, however. The report that they have taken up a strong position on the hills above the race course at Vina del Mar is much more probable. It is not improbable, also, that they had received some accession of strength since they fought their way down the coast from Quintero Bay, as there is no question that the revolution has many sympathizers in the Province of Valparaiso. It is not regarded as within the range of possibilities that the insurgents will make an attack on the Government forces for a while yet. At all events, while the movements of the rebels are a good deal a matter of conjecture, there is no doubt that President Balmaceda has lost no time in strengthening his position. Reinforcements have been constantly arriving, until now he has within reach fully 20,000 men. He has established a long line of defence, reaching fsom Vina del Mar to Placilla, and which it would be almost impossible for the forces at the command of Gen. Canto to break through. Confidence is gradually returning in Valparaiso in consequence of the strength and disposition of the government forces and some of the business houses were opened to-day for the first time since the appearance of the invading army. The Government army is much better equipped than the enemy so far as cavalry is concerned, and Balmaceda is kept pretty well informed of the movements of the rebels by his cavalry corps, which is almost constantly on the move. The stories that the troops in Balmaceda's army are desperate are, so far as can be ascertained, without foundation. The torpedo boats Almirante Condell and Almirante Lynch are constantly patrolling the bay and keep a sharp lookout to prevent any demonstration on the part of the part of the insurgent cruisers. In this they have been so far successful. From the condition of affairs here and the movements of troops, it is generally believed to-day that Balmaceda has almost prepared himself for a decisive move, and that possibly to-morrow, and almost certainly within two days, he will attack the insurgents in force and endeavor to end the war, so far as it can be done by a victory or defeat in front of Valparaiso.

THE NEXT GREAT RAILWAY.

The Port Simpson & Hudson Bay Railway—Shortest Possible Route.

We have been presented with a map of the Dominion, showing the proposed Port Simpson railways, including the Manitoba & Northwestern, which has been chartered from Winnipeg to Port Simpson, and will open up some of the finest country in Canada, both in Manitoba, Northwest and British Columbia. Then there is the Pacific, Peace River and Hudson Bay Railway, chartered from Port Simpson to Hudson Bay, which has advantages over all others as a transcontinental line. The fact of a seaport existing in the very heart of the continent more than 1000 miles nearer than Quebec to the centre of the Northwest Territories, is only now beginning to be realized by the public, and the importance of it cannot be over estimated. Churchill harbor is, owing to the convergence of the meridian toward the north, actually nearer to Liverpool than either Montreal or New York, while it has been proved beyond a doubt by the Hudson Bay expedition of 1886 that it is navigable eight months out of the year. It is only 400 miles from the edge of the greatest wheat field in the world, embracing over 200,000,000 of acres capable of supporting an immense population.

Commerce, the sure passport to natural greatness, is destined to set up a throne of universal empire in Canada, because the immense amount of transport traffic passing from the eastern shores of China and Japan to the western shores of Europe, which has hitherto cast its wealth into the coffers of the United States, will soon seek the shorter and less expensive route about to be opened up across the continent in Dominion territory. Owing to the shape of the earth and the position of Canada upon it, this country enjoys great advantages over the United States in respect to trans-Pacific, trans-continental and trans-Atlantic trade, and to explain to some extent why the Canadian Government expedition was sent out, and why our north land is destined to attract so much attention in future. A few figures are submitted. If we take Yokohama, a central point in Japan, and Liverpool, the great commercial centre of Europe, it will be an easy matter to find the shortest lines between the two. The total navigation and railway distance via San Francisco or Central Pacific is 10 900 miles, and via Vancouver, C.P.R., 10 440 miles, and via Port Simpson and Hudson Bay 8,275 miles, showing a difference in favor of Port Simpson route of 2625 miles over Central, and 1984 over the C.P.R. These figures are authentic, and speak for themselves. But look also at the altitude; the railway portion of this route, which is by the Pine Rivet Pass, Peace river country, Hudson bay, etc., runs through a country easy of railway construction, the whole distance is less than 1450 miles and the greatest altitude of which is 2440 feet above the level of the sea, or nearly 2000 feet lower than the highest point of Canadian Pacific and 5800 feet lower than the highest point of Central Pacific railway.

This being the shortest line that can be drawn between the Atlantic and Pacific must become the great highway of commerce for trans-Pacific trade. It unites Europe with Japan by a route several thousand miles shorter than any other line that is possible, and the day is not far distant when the freight taken from steamships from China and Japan will be transferred to railway cars at Port Simpson and from there go by rail to Port Chirchill to go aboard the Liverpool steamers.

Monte Carlo and the World's Fair.

CHICAGO, Aug. 26.—Henry P. Omaged, of Monte Carlo, representing the great gambling interests there, has been in Chicago three or four days, and it is said that his mission is to make a proposition to the World's Fair people for the establishment of a fac simile of the famous Monaco gambling house here during the Columbian exposition. According to the story, Omaged is authorized to purchase $1,000,000 of the World's Fair bonds, for cash, and offer one-third of the gross receipts of the gambling table to the Fair directors for the privilege sought. In addition, he guarantees the erection of a building to cost $1,000,000, wherein the gambling is to be carried on. There are two drawbacks to the scheme, one being that the laws against gambling are very severe, and the other is that the directors would not dare to accept, owing to the howl that would be raised. It is reported that M. Omaged submitted his scheme to one of the Chicago Fair commissioners now abroad, and was advised to come to Chicago, which he proceeded to do, landing in New York last Thursday, and arriving here on Saturday.

Before. After.

A QUARTER OF A CENTURY AGO

There settled in Baker county, Oregon, near what is now Baker City, a man who has since become identified with the resources and development of that country. This man is no other than Mr. John Stewart, one of the wealthiest and most influential citizens in the county. In a recent letter he says: "I had been suffering from pains in my back and general kidney complaint for some time, and had used many remedies without any but temporary relief. The pains in my back had become so severe that I was prevented from attending to my work and could not move about without the use of a cane. Hearing through a friend, of the wonderful cures effected by Oregon Kidney Tea, I was induced to try a box, and from that very first dose I found instant relief, and before using half the contents of the box the pains in my back entirely disappeared. I have every faith in the virtues of the Oregon Kidney Tea, and can conscientiously recommend it to my friends. I would not be without it for anything."

Oregon Kidney Tea cures backache, inconfidence of urine, brick dust sediment, burning or painful sensation while urinating, and all affections of the kidney or urinary organs of either sex.

THE CENSUS.

The census of 1881 gave Canada a population of 4,324,810; the census of 1891 gives Canada a population of 4,823,344, an increase in ten years of 498,534. "These figures," says a Tory telegraph correspondent, "although they show vigorous life in the population of Canada, do not come up to expectation." Let us see whether or not these figures "show vigorous life in the population of Canada." The population of Nova Scotia increased in ten years 9,951, New Brunswick 61, Prince Edward Island 217. In Quebec, the region of large families, the increase of population in ten years has been only 129,565, whilst that of Ontario, the garden of Canada, has been only 186,067. In Manitoba in ten years we have a gain of 92,182, and in British Columbia a gain of 42,308. The increase in Assiniboia and Saskatchewan also has been considerable.

These figures show a percentage of increase during ten years of 11.52, or a yearly percentage of increase of 1.15. These figures, of course, include immigration. Now what has been the immigration for the last ten years? According to the report of the Immigration Department covering the period of eight years, from 1883 to 1890 inclusive, we have a total immigration of 725,728. But there are two years for which no figures are given; viz, 1882 and 1891. Now, if we assume that the immigration for each of these years reached 70,000, which is the lowest figure for any of the other eight, we find the total to be 855,728. Assuming that the rate of natural increase during the ten years was one per cent per annum—a moderate rate—we should have had this result in 1891:

Population in 1881..........	4,324,810
Natural increase, 10 per cent.	432,481
Immigrants..........	855,728
Total..........	5,613,019

Compare this with the actual census return, 4,823,344, and we find that Canada has actually lost during the decade 789,675 people. This means that the exodus has taken away not only the natural increase of population, but 357,194 people who came into the country as immigrants. If the census figures are correct, and Mr. Carling has not made a mistake, where is there room for the assertion that the figures "show a vigorous life in the population of Canada?"

The question arises, what is the cause of the failure? Canada, indeed, despite the fact of her being a good country to immigrate to, shows up as a good country to emigrate from. She has increased in population in ten years 498,534, or only 65,953 above the normal natural increase, an addition so small as to argue the superfluousness of an immigration commissioner, for out of a total immigration of 855,728, assuming that native Canadians have remained at home, over 700,000 immigrants have landed in Canada only to be absorbed by the United States. But it does not appear that Canada has lost as many immigrants as she has native sons and daughters. The population of New Brunswick and of Prince Edward Island has practically stood still. In fact, these provinces may be said to be in a fair way of being depopulated. There has been no immigration to them, while there has been, apparently, an extensive emigration. New Brunswick should have increased in population in ten years not less than 30,000. Her increase is 61. What, then, is the situation in New Brunswick? She is inhabited chiefly by people so old that children are becoming scarce. It follows, hence, that inside of two decades there will not be people enough left in that province to tell the tale of their abandonment by their children. And what is applicable to New Brunswick is applicable also to the other Maritime provinces. Unless emigration can be checked or immigration induced, their depopulation is inevitable.

In casting about for the cause of this miserable condition of affairs to what may they be attributed? Shall the soil and climate be held responsible, or politics? We unhesitatingly attribute it to politics. It is a startling commentary on the N.P. and all that means in the shape of subsidies that the results are so meagre. What will the Tory press have to say about a state of affairs which must shortly reduce Ottawa politicians to the sad necessity of stealing from themselves for the want of constituents to plunder?

THE COLONEL'S EFFORT.

Col. Prior as a statistician and as an extempore reeler off of biographical sketches, bids fair to occupy a prominent place in the hearts of his country men. But will it have effect? Will the fact of the senior member of Victoria having packed his blankets during his "salad days" have any effect upon the official intellect that conceived of $6000 for commerce and $20,000 for war? It may further be observed in this connection that the Colonel, warmed by the remembrance of the "curious phenomenon" of ex-C. P. steamers calling at the outer wharf, came near "slopping over," as our American cousins call it. "I knew," said the Col, "the Canadian Pacific Railway could do nearly anything they liked on land." Did the Col. mean to say—was it in his mind rather—that the C. P. was omnipotent in the councils of the nation; that like the centurion of old, it merely had to say to the Government go, and it goeth, come, and it cometh? If the gallant Col. only had "sand" enough to speak his mind; if he and Mr. McConnan could only make themselves believe that it was not meet that they should be the instruments of coteries of self-seeking politicians, they would earn for themselves what they have not now got—the confidence of their fellow citizens.

EDITORIAL NOTES.

On September 2nd the unredeemed 4½ per cent. bonds of the United States mature, and Secretary Foster has been for some time preparing to meet the obligation. They amount to about $50,000,000. It is now expected that holders of bonds to the amount of $30,000,000 will accept the Secretary's offer to continue the bonds at 2 per cent., leaving a little less than $20,000,000 to be redeemed by the Treasury. The war debt of the States has been diminished with remarkable rapidity, and with its final disappearance our neighbors will be confronted with the difficult problem of dealing with their surplus.

In the report of R. B. McMicking, superintendent and electrician, submitted by Alderman McKillican to his colleagues last night, we have a startling commentary on the inherent conservatism of the Victoria ratepayer, such of him, at least, as voted on the recent by-laws. The report makes it appear that some 250 poles, with cross arms, etc., are needed to insure good lighting service this coming winter. We are also told that there is a lack of steam power for generating electricity. Evidently there is but one way to bring ratepayers to their senses, and that is to just simply leave them in darkness and to footpads.

The Colonist expresses surprise that the TIMES, regarding Mr. McConnan as an "insignificant person," should make him the subject of "leading articles." The Colonist, as usual, is unable to see an inch beyond its nose. It cannot see that the conspicuousness of Mr. McConnan is that of a man made prominent not by his own intrinsic merit but as the instrument of the Council of Public Instruction. In this country the Government is by and for the people. Mr. McConnan would reverse this principle. He is by and for the Government. The man who publicly makes an exhibition of himself in this role is entitled to some little free advertising, and it is mean of the Colonist to begrudge it to him.

DISPUTED HISTORY.

To THE EDITOR,—Would you kindly decide the following question, on which there is a dispute:—Who was president of the United States when General Lee surrendered?

[Lincoln was president. As Lee evacuated Richmond, General Kurtz, Federal, occupied it immediately afterwards, and Lincoln visited Richmond about the same time, after which he returned to Washington, where he was killed.—ED. TIMES.]

THE TURF.

SARATOGA TRACK SOLD.

The Hudson County Jockey Club have purchased the track and grounds of the Saratoga Racing Association, chiefly owned and controlled by Albert Spencer. The H.C.J.C. was represented by Gottfried Walbaum, and the sale was made on the stock valuation of $250,000. The Saratoga club house and the Pullman street cottages are not included in the purchase. The track and grounds will be formally transferred at the close of the racing season.

Nelson, the Maine stallion, accompanied by a runner, and driven by his owner, C. H. Nelson, 180 pounds, trotted a mile in 2:10 at the kite-shaped track at Independence, Iowa, in a trial on Sunday afternoon, Aug. 16. This is three-quarters of a second better than his former record, made last year at Cambridge City, Iowa. With a light-weighted driver Nelson is expected to get over a mile there in 2:09 before the close of the season.

Van Buren, carrying 90 pounds, ran a mile and a sixteenth in 1:46 at Garfield Park, Chicago, Ill., Aug. 11, being the fastest time recorded.

Princess Bowling, carrying 93 pounds, ran 5½ furlongs at Saratoga, Aug. 14, in 1:08¼, which is, we belive, the fastest time for the distance on a circular track. La Tosca, 3—111, ran the distance over the down hill track at Morris Park in 1:04¼, June 4, of this year.

Jockeys Carr and Bushnell were thrown from their horses through an accident at the Gloucester Park on Aug. 11, the latter dying from the effects of his injuries a few hours afterward.

MATCH RACE SATURDAY.

A match race is on for Saturday afternoon between Dr. Hall's "Canadian Boy" and J. McKeown's "Bob White," for $100. One mile heats.

ON THE TRACK.

Harry Stone is training Tolmie's Midgard for the stallion race and Athole for an exhibition of what a yearling can do. Both horses are showing up well, and if there is anything in them, Mr. Stone is the man to develop it.

Ritton is on the track, training for the match race with Ito on Saturday week.

Christmas (W. J. Taylor's) is also training for the stallion race.

THE CHARTER OAK RACE.

HARTFORD, Conn., Aug. 27.—Nightingale won the Charter Oak $10,000 trotting race.

THE RING.

JACKSON AFTER CORBETT.

The remarks indulged in by Jim Corbett, in California, in connection with his challenge to F. P. Slavin and Charley Mitchell regarding the character of the fight between him and Peter Jackson at the rooms of the California Athletic Club, wherein Master Jeems sought to make it appear that Pete was saved from a good licking by the club officials, has had the natural effect of stirring up the black Australian's fighting blood, and has caused him to again make an effort to secure another meeting. A dispatch from San Francisco, dated Aug. 15, reads as follows:—

"I am ready to fight Corbett at any time, and in any place except New Orleans. Furthermore, I will bet him $500 that he is not game enough to fight me again; in other words, finish the contest which he says he has already won. If he had me beaten as he says he had, why don't he fight me again, and settle beyond a question who is the better man?"

MCAULIFFE VS. GIBBONS.

The second deposit, of $500 a side, in the match between Jack McAuliffe and Austin Gibbons, for $3000 and a purse of $4000 hung up the Granite Club, was posted with the stakeholder on August 12, making $2000 now in his hands. The final $5000 a side is to go up on August 26, when the purse is also to be placed in the hands of the stakeholder. Both men are assiduously training for the encounter, Gibbons in the vicinity of Paterson, N.J., under the care of his brother Jim, and McAuliffe at the road house kept by Mrs. O'Brien, on the road to Coney Island, with Jimmy Carroll to look after him.

Billy McCarthy, the Australian middleweight, left New York for Liverpool, Eng., on board the steamer City of Berlin, August 12. It is his intention to challenge any man of his avoirdupois in England, and he should not have much difficulty in securing a match.

The Pacific Athletic Club, of San Francisco, have come to the front with an offer of a purse of $12,000 for a finish fight between Bob Fitzsimmons and Ted Pritchard.

ACQUITTED THEMSELVES.

A Good Story About Three Nameless Justices of the Peace.

A good story is told by the New York Sun of the adventure of three police justices and a detective employed by one of the societies whose operations are intended to brace up the law. It seems that shortly before the holiday season began a man who had been active in politics for many years died, leaving his family almost wholly unprovided for. His home had been handsomely furnished, and the widow, compelled to move into more economical quarters, determined to sell the heavier articles of furniture. Three members of the board of police justices took a hand in the sale. Among other devices for helping their friend's widow was a raffle for her grand piano. The justices organized the friendly enterprise, promoted the sale of tickets, and when a sum representing the value of several such pianos had been gathered in, they superintended the drawing.

This took place one evening in a Harlem store. That was where the detective came in, though some people are bold enough to say that it was Comstock himself. At all events, the guardian of morality, whatever his name, thought he saw a chance for a grand coup, and accordingly descended upon the store, made his way through the interested crowd, and formally arrested the three justices for conducting a lottery. The detective might have been a martyr to his zeal if blank wonderment had not paralyzed the spectators and before indignation could assert itself the justices had mastered the situation. A police justice is authorized to hold court at any place and time that occasion may require. The detective had forgotten this, but the three justices hadn't, and one of them having mounted a table, opened court and summoned his colleagues to the bar to plead to the charge laid against them.

Then the spectators began to see fun in the episode, and when they laughed the detective nervously tried to pass the proceedings off as a joke—that is, the trial part. He insisted on the arrest, and the justice on the bench (table) insisted that he should swear in his evidence. This done, the prisoners made their defense, and the presiding justice promptly discharged them. Then he got down, another justice climbed upon the table and reopened court, called the case of the justice who had lately been presiding, heard evidence and defense, and discharged the prisoner. Then the drawing for the widow's piano was resumed.

TWO OLD INDIAN DEEDS.

Showing for What Trifles the Aborigines Traded Away Their Lands.

One of the old and original patentees in the Norwalk (Conn.) settlement was a family by the name of Kellogg, writes a Bridgeport correspondent of the New York Times. Among the records of the family are a number of deeds and patents from the Indians, which are very interesting. An Indian deed to Roger Ludlowe is as follows:

A deed of sale made by Norwalke Indians unto Meisters Roger Ludlowe, of Fairfield, as followeth, 26th February, 1640.

An agreement made betweene the Indians of Norwalke and Roger Ludlowe: It is agreed that the Indians of Norwalke, for deed in consideration of eight fathoms of wampum, six coates, tenn hatchets, tenn hoes, tenn knives, tenn scissors, tenn jewes harpes, tenn fathoms tobaccoe, three kettles of six hands about, tenn looking glasses, have granted all the lands, meddows, pasturings, trees whatsoever there is and grounds betweene the twoe rivers, the one called Norwalke and the other Soakatuck, to the middle of saidd rivers from the sea a day's walke into the country, to the sayed Roger Ludlowe and his heirs and assigns for ever, and that noe Indian or other shall challenge or claim any ground within the sayed river or limits nor disturb the sayed Roger, his heirs or assigns within the precincts aforesaid.

At the bottom of the deed are the names of several Indian chiefs who signed the document.

Another deed from the Indians is to Captain Patrick. It reads as follows:

An agreement betwixt Daniel Patrick and Mehackem and Naramake and Pem-nate Hewn ampoun, Indians of Norwake and Makenton, to the said Daniel Patrick hath bought of the said three Indians the ground called Sacunyte Napucke; also Meenworth; thirdly, Asmusowis; fourthly, all the land adjoyninge to the aftermentioned as far up in the country as an Indian can go in a day from sun rising to sun setting and two islands neere adjoininge to the sayed Carantenayneck, all bounded on the west side with Noewanton, on the east side to the river Norwake, and all trees, meadows and natural adjuncts thereunto belonginge for him and his heirs forever.

For which land the sayed Indians are to receive of the said Daniel Patrick of wampum tenn fathoms, hatchets three, howes three, when ship comes, sixe glasses, twelve tobacco pipes, three knives, tenn drills, tenn needles. This as full satisfaction for the aforementioned lands and for the peaceful possession of which the aforementioned Mahachewell doth promise and undertake to silence all opposers to this purchase if any should in his time act. To witnesse, which on both sides our hands are interchangeably hereunto sett this 20th of April, 1640.

The sufferers from Catarrh are legion and the majority of them make the serious mistake of thinking they should only use treatment when at its worst. The Northern Coast Census.

Mr. A. W. Huson returned from Vancouver last evening by the steamer Yosemite. He has been engaged during the last two months taking the census on the northern coast in connection with Mr. R. E. Green. Their field of labor extended from Knight's Inlet to Port Simpson.

On a Hunting Expedition.

Rear-Admiral Hotham and Captain Lambton, R.N., of H.M.S. Warspite, leave to-morrow morning for Comox on a shooting expedition. They will go as far as Nanaimo on the E. & N. Railway, then take one of the torpedo boats for Comox. The torpedo boat will leave for Nanaimo to-morrow morning.

A Pretty Pet.

Mrs. J. H. Frank is the happy possessor of what her lady friends call "the cutest little dog" living. It is a black and tan "toy" terrier, imported. Its weight is five o nces, but it is only seven months old. The maximum weight which it will attain, however, is 12 ounces. In shape and build it is a perfect dog.

School Accommodation.

A committee of the board of school trustees, consisting of Trustees Morrow, Richards and Jessop visited the Central and High Schools this morning with the object of ascertaining the best method of relieving the present over-crowded state of those schools. The committee made observations, and will hand in their report to the board at its next meeting.

The Sewers.

The contractors for the sewers have struck a pretty ugly piece of rock on Humboldt street, at the foot of Douglas, which is giving them a good deal of trouble. In other parts of the city the work is going on swimmingly, and is not causing as much inconvenience to drivers as was expected. The streets are kept well cleared and there is no cause for complaint.

Leaking Badly.

I. A. Nadeau, assistant superintendent of the Northern Pacific Railroad, received a dispatch stating that the clipper ship Fannie Tucker, which cleared at New York on June 3rd with a large quantity of hardware and other merchandise for Puget Sound, had been obliged to put in at a port below Valparaiso, leaking badly. Among her consignees were Marvin and Tilton, of this city.

Thrown Through the Window.

A well known tin-horn gambler is sporting a pretty pair of black eyes given him by a brother of the same fraternity. The couple got into a fuss over some game of chance when the former, who appears to have been the cause of the trouble found himself on the floor. He received two or more stinging blows between the eyes and was then thrown through the window of a saloon.

Thrown From His Buggy.

A. W. Lawson, an ex-hack driver, who made himself prominent by driving around the streets at a pretty lively rate in a carriage last evening, ended his drive on Humboldt. While going along that street the carriage went up on a pile of earth and Lawson was thrown out. It was nothing new to him to come in contact with the hard ground, and, as usual, he came out of the scramble almost uninjured.

Figures Wont Lie.

And this is the way it figures, paying for a home without money, providing you are paying $25 a month rent: In five years you would pay $1500 that you would never get back, not even interest. And the natural advance in five years on your property ought to be about $500, total $2000. So if you should purchase one of those beautiful $2000 cottages of YOUNG & BARTLETT, No. 9 Trounce Avenue, on the installment plan, in five years you will virtually have paid for your home without money.

Fraser River Salmon Pack.

Close calculation of the salmon pack on the Fraser River gives 165,000 cases for twenty-one canneries, the largest pack being made by Alexander Ewen, 26,008 cases. The smallest canneries' pack will run from 6000 to 10,000 cases each. Ewen paid fishermen 20 cents for sockeye salmon, which accounts for his heavy pack. The shortage on the Fraser this year is 145,000 cases, and the whole British Columbia pack about 160,000 cases. All canners say the season has been very unprofitable, but is not any worse than expected.

Jumped to Her Death.

Mlle. Lilly Lavalle, the woman who was given a gold medal in Victoria for her daring feat on May 24th at the Gorge, met her death at San Francisco this week. She had advertised a balloon ascension and parachute jump exhibition. She broke away from the balloon about 1000 feet from the ground, the parachute opening out after a straight drop of 100 feet. While doing some acrobatic feats on the bar her hold broke and she fell some 500 feet to the ground. When picked up she was an inanimate mass, wholly unrecognizable.

High Grade Pianos.

Mr. A. Petersen, of A. and S. Nordheimer & Co., of Toronto, has brought six sample pianos of their own manufacture to this city. The instruments of this celebrated old house are on view for a few days at M. W. Waitt & Co.'s music warerooms. Parties interested in the art of piano making will find it to their interests to examine these instruments, which have made such an excellent reputation for themselves during the past few years. The very name of Nordheimer is a sufficient guarantee that the instruments are of superior quality, and we bespeak a ready sale for them, especially as liberal terms will be given when required.

H.M.S. Warspite.

H.M.S. Warspite will be out of the dry dock by the 1st of October if nothing happens to delay the work at present progressing satisfactorily. The admiral has decided that he wants the Warspite out by that time, so no doubt she will be out.

Forepaugh's Great Show.

There is general regret among the juveniles that this great successor of of Barnum will not visit Victoria. It has been arranged by the P.S. & A.S.S. Co. to grant a fare and one-fifth rate for the round trip during the show's exhibition at Seattle, September 8th, 9th and 11th.

Will be Interesting.

The case of John Durance, jr., charged with having a grouse in his possession, will come up in the provincial police court to-morrow morning. The case promises to be an exceedingly interesting one it having been remanded from last week as the evidence pro and con was so decidedly different.

Property Values.

A. W. Ross & Company of Winnipeg, in their comparative statement of real estate values for the Northwest cities on the Canadian and American side, places the price for Victoria property much higher than any city, large or small. This is the case in all kinds of property both in and out of the city.

Making Arrangements.

The Saanich farmers are in the city to-day taking up a collection for the annual exhibition of the North and South Saanich Agricultural Association which takes place shortly. The association have now a good race track adjoining their grounds which they intend to use for the first time this fall.

Only One Left.

There is but one property holder standing in the way of the street car to the driving park, and he is the one who would be most benefitted by the extension of the line. The Jockey club and Agricultural Society management hope he will act as public spirited as the other owners and give the required ten feet.

Bound South.

The following passengers went south this morning on the Walla Walla: C. J. Martin and wife, F. J. Sehl, D. Nolan, Rev. J. A. Van Nevel, A. Ball, J. A. Callaghan, James Bennallack, M. Buchanan and wife, R. H. Lindsay, J. M. Irving, H. Schrutte, Mrs. Dickinson, Miss C. Martin, Miss A. Martin, Mrs. Copeland and two children, Mrs. Walsh, Miss K. Walsh, J. L. Stickel and wife, Miss J. E. Crawford.

The Sealers' New Memorial.

An important and representative meeting of the Sealers' Association was held last evening in the office of Hall & Goepel. Mr. Morris Moss presided, and there were present Messrs. E. B. Marvin, J. L. Penny, R. Hall, Wm. Munsie, Capt. Warren, J. Stevason, Capts. Kelley, Dodd, Urquhart, W. Bornz, Harold, Bisset and others. The object of the meeting was to draft a new memorial to the Home Government on the sealing question, that appearing in a Vancouver paper having been rendered useless for diplomatic purposes through publication. The new statement will be dispatched to the Home Government in a day or two.

Police Court Notes.

There was a very good business done at this morning's session, his honor making assessments to the amount of $122.

Timothy Daly and Joe, an Indian, were each fined $5.

Jennie Kay, one of the common women of the town, who might have been noticed frequently of late doing the equestrian act through the city, to-day made her first bow before his honor, and for that privilege paid $58.

Lee Fong and Ye Tong, for infraction of the health by-law, by allowing dirt and filth to accumulate on their premises, were fined $2 and $10 and costs respectively.

The Carter vs. Spring case was further adjourned till to-morrow.

A Hustling Contractor.

Quite a number of people thought when contractor Lorimer undertook to erect the agricultural buildings that he had a superabundance of courage, and that he would never get the structure ready in time. But Mr. Lorimer put into the work the proper spirit, aided by plenty of men and a determination to sacrifice everything in order to present the society with the buildings in time to prepare them for the exhibition. He has about seventy men, who work from daylight to dark. The immense and rather handsome building is nearly finished. Only the tower of the main structure remains, and there are yet ten days left. Mr. Lorimer is determined it shall be finished on time, and from the busy look of things out there his word will be kept.

NOBLE REDMEN

Have a Little Spree and Make it Warm for Policemen.

Officers McDonald and Cameron yesterday evening went over on the Indian reserve to arrest a drunken Indian. After they had taken him into custody they were set upon by a large number of Indians, who tried to rescue the prisoner. In the scuffle both the officers were struck with clubs and the Indians used their fists freely. As a result of the blows Officer McDonald will have to take a few days' rest as his arm is badly bruised. He was also hit in the back. Officer Cameron came out of the melee more fortunately than his comrade, but his back is rather lame this morning. The officers, however, finally succeeded in getting away with their prisoner.

Officer Taylor, who had previously heard a police whistle, reached the scene of the trouble just a few minutes after the other officers had gone away, and had unconsciously run into a veritable hornet's nest. On asking what the trouble was one big Indian said he would show him, and forthwith knocked him down. Then the whole crowd attacked him and struck him with clubs and kicked him. He finally got away, but left his hat and baton behind.

Three officers then joined forces and went to the reserve. They arrested two of the rioters, Peter and Sookum, and this morning captured three others, Joseph, Moses and Harry. The men are West Coast Indians, and Joseph and Moses are old offenders.

The case was heard before Police Magistrate Belyea this morning, and was remanded till to-morrow.

"THE HAYMAKERS" A SUCCESS.

Golden Opinions Reaped by the Choir of the First Presbyterian Church.

Another musical success has been added to the long list scored by the choir of the First Presbyterian Church in the performance of "The Haymakers" last night. At 8 o'clock the house was filled to the doors, and only standing room could be had after that hour. A few minutes after eight the choir took their places on the platform, the principals in the front. The recitative "Arouse Ye, Arouse Ye!" by Mr. Erskine, was sung in a faultless manner, especial attention being paid to phrasing. The chorus, "Away to the Meadows," was well sung, the time excellent, and the attack first rate. The song by Mr. Kinnaird, "Some Folks Like the Country," gave scope for his well-known humorous propensities, and was well rendered. The duet by Mrs. McCandless and Miss Wolff, "Sweet Morn How Lovely is Thy Face" was one of the best numbers.

Mrs. McCandless is well know to Victorians and like Mr. Erskine had a large share of the work. She has a good soprano voice, very sympathetic, and always sings well. In her duet with Miss Wolff her singing was simply perfect, her enunciation especially fine. The recitative, "Higher and Higher Mounts the Sun," and the song, "The Birds have Sought the Forest Shade," were grandly rendered, every word heard distinctly, the shading and expression very intelligently done. On the other hand, when singing "A Dairy Maid and I," toward the close of the last verse the voice had become wearied and the tendency to become flat was noticeable. The dream song: "There's none so brave as Willie," was excellently given. In the song with the choir, "All Nature now Rejoices," Mrs. McCandless acquitted herself nobly, considering that she had to sing against the whole choir, who in spite of the efforts of Mr. Brown, would sing out. Mrs. McCandless' singing on the whole was a great success. Miss Wolff (who on this occasion made her second appearance before a Victoria audience), contralto, has a very fine voice, especially in the lower and middle register, but her high notes are rather thin. To Miss Wolff must be given the palm, for this lady was the only soloist who received an encore during the entire cantata. This was earned in her singing of "Scenes of Happiness I love ye." It is a very taking number, and Miss Wolff made the most of it with her fine voice. Her singing is finished and cultured, she has her voice well under control, singing with ease and confidence. Her other items were also well rendered, especially in the duet with Mr. McCandless. Mr. Grant sang his two numbers very nicely, although evidently not accustomed to recitative work, his serenade song however, was very cereditable. Mr. Kinnaird, as the humorous party, did very well, but did not seem to be in the true spirit, in fact his singing was labored. Mr. Gold was unable to sing the parts allotted to him on account of a severe cold, and Mr. Brown had to fill the breach. This gentleman's singing needs no explanation when it is said he sang as he always does. That is sufficient. The trios and quartette were all very nicely given. The choruses were on the whole good, the choir paying every attention to the beat, the attack excellent, not any hesitancy on anyone part to come in at the proper time, with the exception of one chorus, "A Shower, a shower," when the tenors, and basses and altos were not in it from the start to the finish. The sopranos throughout did their part nobly, but the other parts would not respond to Mr. Brown's efforts to pull them together. Several times it looked like a complete break down, but they struggled through to the end. The following were the best of the choruses: "Good Morning," "Rainbow, Rainbow," "Harvest Home." No one can have any idea of the labor spent in getting up one of these cantatas with voices such as are found in the ordinary church choirs, and everything taken into consideration Mr. Brown deserves the highest praise for the way in which he was able to present the "Haymakers." Miss Stephen, the pianist, on whom fell the work of the "orchestra" is also deserving of the highest econiums for her excellent accompaniments. The second part of the evening's entertainment took the form of a miscellaneous concert, and in many cities this portion would have constituted a programme by itself. The violin solos by Mr Ernest Wolff were very much appreciated, he having to respond to an encooe. Mr. Clement Rowland, the baritone, late of the famous D'Oyly Carte Opera Company, London, Eng., has already made himself famous by his splendid singing. He has a very powerful voice and uses it to the best advantage. His singing of Madeline last night was even better than at the Wolff family concert a short time ago. "The Star of Bethlehem" also showed his voice to advantage. Mrs. McCandless sang "Waiting Hearts" beautifully, her voice showing no sign of weariness, although an extremely heavy song to sing, especially after her efforts in the Cantata. She received a well-merited encore, but did not respond. Mr. Erskine sang "The Bloom is on the Rye" in a fairly pleasing manner, although there seemed to be a want of spirit about it, caused by his exertions in the Cantata and the heat of the room. Miss Wolff recited "Curfew shall not ring to-night." This is an old story, and when the title was given out by Miss Wolff many people seemed weary, but in the hands of this lady new beauties were seen in this old tale, and the interest of all was awakened, and kept without a break to the end. Miss Wolff is evidently as much at home in the realms of elocution as of music. The duet "Love and War," by Messrs. Erskine and Brown did not go very well; their voices do not blend. Mr. Erskine seemed to be laboring on the high notes, and altogether it was not a very creditable number. This followed by "God Save the Queen" brought the entertainment to an end, and the choir are to be congratulated on having succeeded in giving this concert with so much success. These performances by ordinary choirs are ambitious efforts, and when given with such a measure of success as attended "The Haymakers" last night, it is worth the while to take the trouble to learn them. The First Presbyterian Church choir have always had the name of being one of the best in Victoria. There can be no question now as to their being one of the best. The question is, are they not the best?

Made an Example of.

George R. Thompson and Arthur McLaughlin are two young men who sought pleasure in grossly insulting a lady on the public street yesterday. They were driving along State street, appearing much the worse for liquor, when they accosted this lady with the foulest of language and without the smallest provocation. She subsequently met an officer, to whom she related the occurrence, and while in his company, met the two young fellows again leaving a certain house on Herald street. They were at once identified by her and taken to the lockup by Officer Smith. This morning when they appeared before his honor they looked the reverse of jovial. The court had to be cleared of spectators while the evidence in the case was being given. It was not edifying. His honor read them a severe lesson. There have been frequent complaints lately of offences of this nature, and he was determined to make an example of the offenders. The fact that they were under the influence of liquor was no excuse whatever. There was no justification in a man's getting full of drink, acting like a wild beast, and then coming to court with the excuse that he did not know what he was doing. It would have no weight with his honor, and he distinctly wished the prisoners and all others to so understand. He imposed a fine of $25 each or one month in the common jail.

Court Again Adjourned.

Those ladies and gentlemen who have appeals to present to the court of revision and who have been waiting for several days to have their cases heard, have good cause to feel dissatisfied at the work done by that body to-day. At 2 o'clock, the time that the session should have commenced, the only members present were Mayor Grant, Alds. Munn and McKillican. There was no increase at 2.30 so the Mayor adjourned the court until 2 o'clock to-morrow, when an effort will be made to secure a quorum.

James Bay Church.

Mr. Thos. Hooper, architect, has completed plans for a very pretty little church to be erected at the corner of Menzies and Michigan streets, James Bay, for the Methodist mission. At a preliminary meeting held at Mr. D. Spencer's residence a few evenings ago the plans were generally approved of. If the plans are accepted the structure will be used as a temporary church and Sunday school and used for the latter when a larger church is required.

Violin Solos by a Ghost That Haunts a Mine.

The Strange Story Told of a Deserted Cabin Down in Alabama—Sweet Strains from an Invisible Musician.

Down in the abandoned Arbacoochee gold fields, twenty miles south of Edwardsville, Ala., says the Pittsburgh Dispatch, stands the ruins of a log cabin where years ago a mysterious and bloody crime was committed. The place is haunted, but not by visible ghosts. No white-robed phantom forms walk with noiseless tread across the broken, vine-covered floor of the old cabin. No specter lights gleam through the one window or across the rotten threshold of the shutterless door. The ghost is heard, not seen, and no one who has once heard the sounds that come from the old cabin at midnight will ever again doubt the existence of spooks.

The ghostly sounds are the music of a violin. The playing is not that of a master, but it is good, and it is soft and low as though the soul of the player was in sympathy with his music. Night after night for many years this ghostly violin played by ghostly hands has awakened the echoes of the deserted cabin. First, there is heard thrumming on the strings, a tuning of the instrument, and then the bow is drawn across the strings when they are all in perfect harmony. A sweet Scottish love ballad of olden days is first played, then comes the familiar music of the Scot's highland fling.

Then there is a brief pause, another thrumming of the strings, and then on the night air softly floats the music of that old Scottish song: "Within a Mile o' Edinboro Town." One stanza is finished, another is begun; the music is softer, sweeter than before, when suddenly it stops in the middle of a bar, and is heard no more until the following night, when the same programme is repeated.

Of course, there is a story attached to the old cabin, a story to explain the ghostly music, and a weird story it is. In 1868, when the Arbacoochee gold fields were filled with prospectors, two old California miners turned up there one day. Their names were Martin Burke and Daniel McLeod. They were past middle life, and had been mining in California and Nevada for twenty years with indifferent success. McLeod was a Scotchman, and to the newly-discovered gold field he brought an old violin, which he never tired of playing when asked to perform.

The two miners rented the cabin and went to work prospecting among the hills. They had been there only a few weeks when other miners and prospectors noticed they went out early in the morning, always going in the same direction, and did not return till night. Many suspected they had struck it rich somewhere in the hills, but as no one else had been able to find gold in paying quantities it was finally agreed that Burke and McLeod were merely following some blind lead.

One day the two men were missed. Next day they were still missing, and the cabin was visited. The dead body of McLeod was lying on the floor of the cabin. He had been shot through the head while sitting in front of the fire playing his violin. When he fell his fingers stiffened on his violin, and when in removing it from the dead man's hands the bow was drawn across the strings by accident the old fiddle emitted a wail for the dead musician which, it is stated, made those who heard it shudder. Burke was gone, and naturally he was suspected of the murder of his partner.

There seemed to be but one reasonable theory of the crime—that the two men had made a rich find, that Burke had murdered his companion and taking all the gold had fled. The theory was generally accepted, but as there was no positive evidence against Burke no effort was made to find him.

None dared to charge him with the murder of McLeod, because they had no evidence. Burke spent his days and nights in the one saloon of the little town. About that time the ghostly violin-playing in the old cabin was first heard, and one night a frightened countrymen was giving an account of it in the saloon at Arbacoochee. Burke heard the story, and it was noticed that he turned deadly pale, and, staggering to the bar, called for a glass of liquor. From that night Burke drank more and more, and in a week he was on the verge of the jim-jams.

Late one night he reeled up to the bar and called for liquor. A crowd of countrymen were drinking in a back room, and one of them was playing a violin. Burke paid no attention to the music at first, but just as he raised the glass to his lips the country fiddler began to play: "Within a Mile o' Edinboro Town." The glass of liquor fell from Burke's trembling fingers, and, with a gasp, he fell to the floor. The look of terror on the man's face was one never to be forgotten. He fell all in a heap, and in five minutes he was dead. The doctors said he died of heart failure, caused by drink and sudden excitement.

Terrible Siberia.

Siberia has no less a bad name for lawlessness than for climate; for convicts escape from confinement during summer and prowl about preying upon the inhabitants. This is often done with the connivance of the police authorities, it is said, who not merely draw the allowance for the escaped convict but accept part of the spoil when he returns with the approach of winter, when no robber can live in the woods or on the road through the long months of severe frost. An attempt is about to be made to reform the administration, chiefly with the view of separating the office of juge d'instruction, or examining judge, from police functions. In each town and village of Western Siberia there is to be, according to the proposal coming before the imperial council, a creation of justices of the peace. The present provincial tribunals will fulfill the functions of a court of appeal.

AN OLD-TIME INDIAN TERROR.

An Aged Indian Warrior Who for Ten Years Terrorized the Settlers of Arizona.

They were talking about the Indian outbreak, says the New York Herald, when one of the party who had been for many years a resident of Arizona Territory, remarked:

"Why, down in Arizona we lived for fifteen years in a state of terror on account of a marauding band of Apaches that had things pretty much their own way all this time, in spite of all that the Government troops could do to keep them in check.

"I call to mind particularly Old Victorio. There was a warrior for you. He commanded a band of some two hundred bucks. They were the Chiracahua Apaches, and the murders, robberies and depredations committed by that band during those ten years in which they were on the warpath are almost incredible.

"Old Victorio was nearly ninety years of age when the troubles began. He ruled those redskins with a rod of iron in spite of his years. And he was paralyzed, too, completely paralyzed. He was only able to use his left arm a little, just enough to lift a cigarette to his mouth.

"He was constantly in the saddle, and had to be strapped on like a bale of goods. His band had the finest ponies to be found anywhere. They would sometimes appear at one place and in less than twenty-four hours you would hear of them at some place one hundred miles distant. All throughout Southern Arizona and Northern Mexico Old Victorio continued his raids until the settlers finally gave up in despair. The Government troops appeared to be utterly powerless in the matter.

"Why, that band of redskins would sometimes plunder a wagon train right under the noses of the troopers, and by the time the latter were mounted and ready to start in pursuit, they would be out of sight. The next day, perhaps, the wires would tell of some fresh depredation committed by the same band in a section of the country over one hundred miles away.

"This old war dog, however, was finally rounded up and shot. He died in the saddle, fighting to the last, and his band, what was left of it, dispersed. Of course the settlers heard of it and were delighted. Dismay followed, however, when Conchise took the field. This Indian ran things pretty much the same way for five years, and then came Old Geronimo."

THE CAROLINE ISLANDS.

They Have Been Christianized and Civilized Mainly by American Missionaries.

It is a fact that the American missionaries in the Caroline islands are discriminated against by the Spanish authorities. In 1852 the American Board of Foreign Missions sent out several missionaries to Christianize the islands of this section of the Pacific ocean, at that time unclaimed by any foreign state and but little known except to hardy New England whaling sailors, who have found in them a source of supplies for their ships during their long cruises in hunting whales from Cape Horn to the Arctic ocean.

These missionaries, after many struggles against the heathenism of the natives of the islands, at last gained a foothold and then steadily advanced, until now the entire islands hereabout may be truly said to be as thoroughly Christianized (not civilized) as any of the countries inhabited by the white race, writes a New York Times correspondent. The work of these missionaries has been almost wonderful. They have built churches and schools, have reduced the native dialect to writing and instructed the children in books printed in the native tongue; induced the natives to live in villages and respect one another's rights and property; have raised the standard of morality and established the binding marriage ceremony, and have educated the natives so that the rudimentary branches are well known by the mass of the people, and the English language has become almost as much used as the native tongues.

In return for all this the love of the natives for their missionary friends is very great. They allow themselves to be governed and directed by the missionaries without comment, looking up to them as being always right and acknowledging the authority of missionaries above all others.

BOTH SEXES DRESS ALIKE.

Little in Attire to Distinguish Annam Men from Women—Mirrors in the Hat.

At Annam, an empire occupying the eastern portion of the Indo-Chinese peninsula, with a population of 15,000,000, men and women wear their hair in the same way and dress almost alike, says the St. Louis Globe-Democrat. Like the man, the woman wears the turban, a long tunic, wide, loose trousers and a bright sash, the ends falling below the knees. The physiognomy is almost the same, as the men are beardless and have their hair done up like the women.

The only clew to distinguish them is the ear-rings and finger rings worn by women only. The ear-rings are like double shirt studs, and among the lower orders are of colored glass.

The wives and daughters of mandarins alone are allowed to wear gold jewelry. The rings are of spiral wire, fitting tight and standing out to some height. Some women of the upper class wear also necklaces of strings of gold or silver beads.

The hat of the woman is monumental. It is like a large barrel cover, three-quarters of a yard in diameter. Six or seven silk cords as thick as a quill are fastened on each side, and when worn fall down below the waist.

Where the ends are fastened to the hat on each side is a huge black or brown silk tassel. Some of these hats are artistically made of carefully selected palm leaves and lined with neatly plaited flag leaves. These are expensive, especially when they have chiseled silver clasps at the tassels.

Many women fasten a little round mirror in the hat, before which they arrange their turban when they go to town. The hat is the article most prized by the stylish ladies, and often costs ten and fifteen dollars.

PAYING FOR A SADDLE.

Georgia Planters Who Did Not Scan Their Bills Carefully.

"A story occurs to me," he said to a writer in the New York Tribune, "of the slipshod way in which the planters used to do business in the South before the war." A few puffs at his cigar, and he had his anecdote drawn up in proper form. "There used to be a man who kept a general store in Georgia at some distance from any large town. His customers were chiefly the planters, who had their big estates in the neighborhood. One time the store-keeper bought a dozen saddles, and two months later, when he made out his annual bills, he could account for only eleven of them. He had five on hand, but his books contained entries of the sales of only six of the others. He or his clerk had undoubtedly sold one and forgot to charge it.

"Here was a dilemma. Being a thrifty man, he did not wish to lose the price of a saddle, yet how could he find out who had bought the article? An idea struck him, however. He would charge each of his wealthy customers who had bought one of the six other saddles with the seventh one. Those who had not bought the saddle would at once say so, and the purchaser would be he who did not object to paying for it. After making out the bills and sending them to his customers, the store-keeper was compelled to visit a city at some distance. He told his clerk what he had done, and instructed him to beg the pardon of every customer who said he had bought no saddle, and to tell him that the item had been put on his bill by mistake.

"The proprietor of the store made his trip, and when he returned home, several days after starting, he asked his clerk who had really bought the saddle in question. The clerk was evidently worried, and said: 'Eleven of those, about whom we were in doubt, have been here to pay their bills. Nine of them paid for the one saddle; one man wasn't quite certain whether he had bought a saddle or not, but would let us know in a day or two, and the other planter was sure that we had made a mistake, because he bought two new saddles last year, and didn't need any more.'

"The store-keeper was somewhat taken aback at the overwhelming success of his little scheme; but as there was nothing else to do, he quietly pocketed the money and kept his mouth shut."

CHARACTER AND POKER.

A Good Way to Learn a Man's Disposition.

It is an easy matter to read a man's character by the way he plays an ordinary game of poker, says the New York Herald. A man without any nerve, or, to speak plainly, a coward, is the most easy of all to detect. He will play a mean, contemptible game, and will prefer to win a dollar or two on a full hand to taking the least risk in raising his opponents. He will never bet more than the blind unless he has a sure thing, and even if he has four of a kind his manner will be undecided, because he is fearful that some one else might hold a straight flush.

Next comes the man who plays to win, or who in a story book would be referred to as an avaricious miser. This gentleman will show his true colors by the niggardly way he has of putting up his money and by the longing looks with which he regards his neighbor's pile of chips. He is not cowardly, yet he won't bet unless he is sure to win. It is easy to distinguish this gentleman from the coward by the way he will bet on a good hand when he has it. No subterfuge is too mean for him, and he will resort to all kinds of tricks to throw his opponents off their guard. If he holds two pairs he is sure to make some remark about trying to fill a straight. If he has three of a kind he will make an offhand statement that he has a small pair and is going to bet on them just for fun. When he wins a few dollars he will make some excuse and get out of the game. Watch the next time you play and see if what I say is not true.

An ordinary man will come down squarely with his money. He may bluff, but he will play his hand for what it is worth, and quit when he thinks he has gone far enough.

An aggressive fellow shows fight in every movement. If he has been losing it won't affect his play in the least. He will bluff and bet away until he loses all his money or turns the tide of his luck and comes out winner. Some men, however, can't stand this, and as there is an exception to every rule, there must be one to this. Continued bad luck will make a coward of a good man, and he will play warily. So do not confound him with the man who is a coward by nature.

Riding the Camel.

Dr. Nachtigal, the celebrated African explorer, was once the guest of a rich Hamburg merchant, says London Tid-Bits. The merchant's son, a young man of somewhat sentimental temperament, said that his dearest wish was to ride across the desert on the back of a camel. He thought such a ride must be very poetical indeed. "My dear young friend," replied the explorer, "I can tell you how you can get a partial idea of what riding a camel on the desert of Africa is like. Take an office stool, screw it up as high as possible, and put it into a wagon without any springs; then seat yourself upon the stool and have it driven over uneven and rocky ground during the hottest weather of July or August after you have had nothing to eat or drink for twenty-four hours, and then you will get a faint idea of how delightfully poetic it is to ride on a camel in the wilds of Africa."

Never Gets Over It.

The Indian is born suspicious, and he never gets over it. One may chum with a white hunter for ten years; and yet he will never fully trust him. An Apache may be starving for food, and yet he will suspect the white child who offers him bread of having poisoned it to accomplish his death.

MORE LIGHT IS WANTED

Ald. McKillican Submits Two Letters Dealing with the City Lighting.

The city council met last evening as usual for the transaction of municipal business. There were present His Worship Mayor Grant, Ald. Joshua Holland, Joseph Hunter, F. G. Richards, jr., J. Robertson, H. A. Munn, W. D. McKillican, J. Coughlan, A. J. Smith.

THE MUNICIPAL MAIL

contained a letter from Drake, Jackson & Helmcken with reference to an accident which happened to the son of James McKeown through an open drain. Referred to the sewerage committee.

Thomas Hooper asked that a new sidewalk be laid opposite Lewis Lewis' new block, also opposite the new Chinese Mission house. Referred to the street committee with power to act.

H. T. Gerard offered a piece of land, opposite the Jewish cemetery, for crematary purposes. The plot is about 2½ acres in extent.

Ald. Holland referred to the objections which the sanitary committee had met with in the selection of a site for a crematory. He thought the best way to surmount these objections was to give the committee power to act and take the chances.

Ald. Robertson concurred in this request. It was time something be done.

Ald. Richards hoped the committee would take a week to consider this, and let the council act on their report.

Ald. Hunter favored giving the committee power to act. There was not a moment to lose.

Ald. Coughlin objected to the committee having the power to purchase a site of this kind. He even questioned their power to do so.

Ald. Smith explained that the council had the right to empower a committee to act for it, so long as the action of the committee be within the power of the council itself.

His Worship read from the Municipal Act (clause 92) where the act empowers the council to do certain things, among them the deputing of a committee to act for the council with its approval.

Ald. Coughlin pushed his objection on this point. How could it be known that the council would approve of the property purchased by the committee?

His Worship said the committee could get everything in readiness and report to the council their choice.

Ald. Hunter instanced the action of the council in empowering a committee to lay a sidewalk. "Power to act" is simply power to make arrangements.

Ald. Coughlin did not favor any haste in this matter. He suggested that the city make the people observe the sanitary by law by compelling them to look after their back yards. This idea of a crematory was merely experimental, and a week or month did not count much.

His worship pointed out the fact that the crematory by-law had been passed by a vote of 295 to 101, and it was the duty of the council to carry out the behest of the ratepayers so distinctly expressed. All reports of the operation of crematories in other cities were in their favor. His Worship, in this connection, spoke of the apathy of the ratepayers when any question of money was concerned.

Ald. Smith thought that the board should favor this object. He had the fullest confidence in the sanitary committee to act in this matter. He agreed with Ald. Hunter and the Mayor in their interpretation of the Municipal Act regarding the deputing of certain duties to a committee.

Ald. McKillican concurred in the views of the Mayor as to the committee arranging all matters as to the location and price of site, and then coming with their report to the council.

The question was referred to the sanitary committee, with power to act.

George Richardson petitioned the council for compensation for damage to his crops. The amount asked for was $10.—Referred to the street committee.

T. C. Sorby wrote with reference to the sewerage of the five sisters block, and asked that this section of the sewerage be done.—Referred to the sewerage committee to report.

A. W. Jones and Bridgeman wrote asking the city to lay water-pipes, purchased by the owners, on the Sea View property. The firm, on behalf of the owners, stated that the latter were prepared to convey the streets in this section to the council in the usual manner.

Ald. Couglin stated that in view of the circumstances, the work had been ordered done.

R. T. Williams wrote requesting the early delivery of the city advertising matter for the new directory for 1892.—Referred to the printing committee with power to act.

Prof. Whitman wrote asking what the council would give for a descriptive article in the Boston Home Journal.—Referred to the printing committee.

The Transfer Co. asked for a few loads of gravel to be laid on Broughton street, opposite the Transfer stables.—Referred to street committee.

The by-law to close a portion of King's road was read a first time.

Ald. Holland who introduced this measure, explained that to properly lay out the corporation gravel pits property, it was necessary to close this road.

The by-law to strike the taxation for 1891 was brought up, but the introducer, Ald. Hunter, not being present it was not read.

Ald. McKillican presented the following communications which were referred to the electric light committee for report:

To Alderman McKillican, Chairman Electric Light Committee:

SIR—I have been requested by Mr. McMicking to report to you on the feasibility of increasing the power of the electric light with the present plant, and with as little expense as possible, and beg to recommend as follows:

To take one of the dynamos off the large engine, to reduce the speed of engine, and, by altering the size of the pulleys, get the required speed for the other dynamos.

To put in use the small engine, and, by a countershaft and suitable pulleys, drive the dynamo taken from the large engine.

By this means the present large engine (which, I am informed, is overtaxed with work) will be eased, and the small engine, so used, will make additional power, but a heavier duty will be required of the boiler and extra exertion of the fireman to keep the steam up, and, perhaps, a better quality of fuel.

The expense of making the alterations will be approximately $300.

Another method of driving the dynamo direct from the small engine might be employed, which would not [illegible] be less convenient than the countershaft proposed. All of which is respectfully submitted.

Your obedient servant,

ANDREW GRAY.

The Committee on Electric Light and Street Lighting:

In keeping with your instructions I beg to report that I have examined into, and estimated the needs of the street lighting plant—to enable it to perform fair service through the coming winter, so far as repairs may be needed outside—leaving to Mr. Gray to seek out and report upon what may be required inside the station so as to secure sufficient steam power. As you are aware, the power to drive the plant has been insufficient throughout the past two years. Citizens generally, however, have not been cognizant of this fact, and have, therefore, innocently enough, been ready often to condemn the lamps, as in them the absence of proper feeding power is focussed, and becomes apparent. I find that about four and a half to five miles of poles carrying the line wires are unsafe, many of them having been in the earth since 1883. These poles should properly have been replaced last season, but in view of an important contemplated change, both in the station site and line circuits—all of which, however, were contingent upon the passing of a by-law—they were allowed to stand over, since when some have toppled over and others are exceedingly insecure, and not at all likely to withstand the severe gales often encountered during the winter months. Other structures having also—rightly or wrongly—been placed in close proximity, and even against the Corporation wires, render it needful that the wires should be drawn up taut throughout, and carefully insulated in many places to avoid crosses with contemporary wires, especially during the wet season. The guy posts also to the Government street mast must be renewed, and the station should be whitewashed. For these repairs will be required 250 cedar poles, about 150 cross-arms and a number of insulators and brackets. The cost of the work suggested I estimate at $1100, all of which is respectfully submitted.

R. B. MCMICKING,
Supt. and Electrician.

Ald. McKillican thought it wise to submit these letters to the council to give that body an idea of the inefficiency of the present electric light plant. As the ratepayers had taken so little interest in the by-law, it left the committee without money and almost without plant to light the city during the coming winter. Something will have to be done. He merely presented these letters so that if any blame were to be made, it would not be cast on him. It becomes necessary now for the council to see its way clear to spending $1500 or $2000 in repairing and altering the present plant for the winter.

The street committee reported on several matters referred to them from the previous council.

The council rose at 10:30 o'clock.

Union Pacific Affairs.

NEW YORK, Aug. 26.—The Times says the hitch in the financial scheme, by which the enormous floating debt of the Union Pacific railway was to be extended for three years, is believed to be due to the uncertainty concerning Jay Gould's purpose in the matter. That financier is expected to reach home from the West next week, and, soon after his arrival, it is predicted that Union Pacific affairs will begin to move. The understanding in Wall street is that L. Pierpont Morgan consented to act as trustee in the proposed fund-raising scheme, only after exacting from Russell Sage, Sidney Dillon and George J. Gould, concessions of great importance to the road. One of these concessions, it is believed, was the choice of the presidency of the road, and some knowing ones in the street insist that Morgan has selected his able lieutenant, Samuel Spencer, to succeed President Dillon.

Dyspepsia

Intense Suffering for 8 years—Restored to Perfect Health.

Few people have suffered more severely from dyspepsia than Mr. E. A. McMahon, a well known grocer of Staunton, Va. He says: "Before 1878 I was in excellent health, weighing over 200 pounds. In that year an ailment developed into acute dyspepsia, and soon I was reduced to 162 pounds, suffering burning sensations in the stomach, palpitation of the heart, nausea, and indigestion.

Intense

I could not sleep, lost all heart in my work, had fits of melancholia, and for days at a time I would have welcomed death. I became morose, sullen and irritable, and for eight years life was a burden. I tried many physicians and many remedies. One day a workman employed by me suggested that I take Hood's Sarsaparilla, as it had cured his wife of dyspepsia.

Suffering

I did so, and before taking the whole of a bottle I began to feel like a new man. The terrible pains to which I had been subjected, ceased, the palpitation of the heart subsided, my stomach became easier, nausea disappeared, and my entire system began to tone up. With returning strength came activity of mind and body. Before the fifth bottle was taken

SPORTING INTELLIGENCE.

Matters of Interest Going Forward in the Sporting World, Here and Elsewhere.

THE OAR.

SCULLING IN AUSTRALIA.

On June 29 a match race, for $1000, took place over the championship course on the Parramatta river, at Sydney, N.S.W., between T. Sullivan, of New Zealand, and C. Dutch, of Australia. There was also a side bet of $500 between the principals. Sullivan, who was conceded a start of five seconds, turned out a sleeper, his rival never being able to get anywhere near him, and he finally winning by a good four lengths, with comparative ease. The course, 3 miles 330 yards, was rowed in 18 min. 53s., which is the fastest time ever made there. Sullivan is evidently a good one, and having exhibited his form in this race, and thereby shut himself out from matches with inferior oarsmen, he has challenged James Stansbury, the champion, to row him over the same course for $1000 a side and the championship of the world.

MAC. IS HERE.

W. McLean, of New Westminster, is here, and is after the aquatic scalp of both Paine and Cotsford. As usual, he fixes the date of race with either. Mac. is looking well, and says he never felt better. He's good humored too as ever. He has purchased the shell in which Paine rowed Peterson some time ago on Shawnigan Lake, and would like to distinguish himself in it (the shell, not the lake).

John Cotsford is concluding arrangements to meet Mac., and there may be a race yet. Cotsford seems as though he could give a good account of himself.

THE AUSTRALIAN OARSMEN.

SAN FRANCISCO, Aug. 27.—There is some hope of a match being consummated between Peterson, the local oarsman and Dutch, of Australia. The former's backers will not consent to race unless it can be arranged to take place about January. Peterson is of opinion at he requires a good rest, and will not take any chances of defeat. Dutch and Stevenson will row in the New Westminster regatta, which will take place next month. Muirhead will not allow Peterson to go north.

BASEBALL.

SAXON CHAMBERLAIN.

Elton Chamberlain is the well known professional pitcher, now connected with the Athletic Club, of Philadelphia, a member of the American Association. His professional career commenced in 1885, when he was engaged as pitcher of a team representing Hamilton, Ont. In 1890 Chamberlain pitched for the Columbus Club, of the American Association, and this season he is one of the pitchers of the Athletic Club, of Philadelphia, as above mentioned. During his professional career Chamberlain, who is able to pitch both left handed and right handed, being ambidexterous, has accomplished some excellent work in his chosen position. On June 7, 1891, he prevented the Columbus team from making more than a solitary safe hit off the delivery, when only twenty-nine men went to the bat.

Brouthers, of the Bostons, signalized the last professional game between the Boston and Cincinnati teams, of the American Association, Aug. 13, at Cincinnati, by making the longest hit ever seen on the grounds. It was in the first innings. Brouthers sent a long fly away out into right. It carried until it met the right field fence on the fly. It hit the fence with such force that it loosened a plank and the ball rebounded to Johnston, who came within an ace of catching Brouthers at third.

John P. Cahill, the veteran California professional, is engaged in organizing a team of San Francisco players, with which he will start for Honolulu about August 25.

Jerry Denny, the once noted third baseman, was, on Aug. 14, released by the Cleveland Club, of the National League.

CRICKET.

SEATTLE VS. VICTORIA.

The Seattle eleven to play Victoria Saturday will arrive to-morrow evening. There is a good deal of interest being displayed in the result of the match. Prof. Foster has the wicket in first class trim, and the members of the home team feel confident.

After the match there will be a single wicket contest between Hudson and Foster, both professionals.

THE GUN.

The Victoria Gun Club held their second shoot for the Routledge cup at the Driving Park yesterday afternoon. The score was:—

W. H. Adams	19
O. Weiler	18
W. White	13
G. Gerrish	12
J. Switzer	11
E. Grigg	10
J. Henley	9
C. McCluskey	6

ATHLETICS.

THE SCOTTISH GAMES.

In the Scottish games to be held on Saturday first, a number of well-known athletes are expected to take part. Carrol of San Francisco, and McLeod, Nanaimo, will be a host in themselves; but there are several other well-known names mentioned. W. B. Ross and D. M. Mackenzie, recent arrivals from Australia, will also take part. There will be thirty-one medals, exclusive of cash prizes, which range from $50 downward.
